Your organisation

Describe your organisation:	The Institut de Ciències del Mar (ICM-CSIC) is a leading marine research institute of Spain's National Research Council (CSIC), based in Barcelona. It conducts transdisciplinary research spanning marine biology, oceanography, fisheries, and marine ecosystems, with growing attention to the human and social dimensions of ocean sustainability and well-being. The institute combines fieldwork, modeling, and policy-oriented science to address challenges facing coastal and marine environments in the Mediterranean and beyond.
Type of organisation:	Public research institution

Your project idea: describe your project or idea, and how it contributes to the scope of the topic(s) you have identified.	We propose Barceloneta (Barcelona) as a coastal case-study neighbourhood, where blue space (sea, port, shoreline) mediates residents' sense of belonging and well-being amid intense touristification and gentrification pressure. ICM-CSIC contributes marine social science expertise, established fieldwork infrastructure, and networks among fishing families and schools to capture how traditional ecological knowledge and maritime identity are transmitted across generations, and how this transmission shapes health outcomes for inhabitants.
